SPANISH MANIFESTO.

(COPY.)

ALL the world has been witneſs to the noble impartiality of the King, in the midſt of the diſputes of the Court of London with its American colonies and with France. Beſides which, his Majeſty having learned that his powerful mediation was deſired, generouſly made an offer of it, which was accepted by the belligerent powers, and for this motive only a ſhip of war was ſent on the Part of his Britannic Majeſty to one of the ports of Spain. The King has taken the moſt energetic ſteps, and ſuch as ought to have produced the moſt happy effect, to bring thoſe powers to an accommodation equally honourable to both parties; propoſing for this end wiſe expedients for ſmoothing difficulties, and preventing the calamities of war. But although his Majeſty's propoſitions, and particularly thoſe of his ultimatum, have been conformable to thoſe which at other times the Court of London itſelf had appeared to judge proper for an accommodation, and were alſo quite as moderate, they have been rejected in a manner that fully proves the little deſire which the Britiſh cabinet has to reſtore peace to Europe, and to preſerve the King's friendſhip. In effect, the conduct of that cabinet, with regard to his Majeſty, during the whole courſe of the negotiation, has had for its object, to prolong it for more than eight months, either by vain pretences, or by anſwers which could not be more inconcluſive; whilſt in this interval the inſults on the Spaniſh flag, and the violation of the King's territories were carried on to an incredible exceſs; prizes have been made, ſhips have been ſearched and plundered, and a great number of them have been fired upon which have been obliged to defend themſelves, the regiſters have been opened and torn in pieces, and even the packets of the Court found on board the King's packet boats.

The dominions of the Crown in America have been threatened, and they have gone to the dreadful extremity of raiſing the Indian nations, called the Chactas Cherrequis, and Chicatchas, againſt the innocent inhabitants of Louiſiana, who would have been the victims of the rage of theſe barbarians, if the Chactas themſelves had not repented, and revealed all that the ſeduction of the Engliſh had planned. The ſovereignty of his Majeſty in the Province of Darien, and on the coaſt of St. Elas has been uſurped; the Governor of Jamaica having granted to a rebel Indian the Commiſſion of Captain General of thoſe provinces.

In ſhort, the territory of the bay of Honduras has been recently violated by exerciſing acts of hoſtility, and other exceſſes againſt the Spaniards, who have been impriſoned, and whoſe houſes have been invaded, beſides which, the Court of London has hitherto neglected to accompliſh what the 16th article of the laſt treaty of Paris ſtipulated relative to that coaſt.

Grievances ſo numerous, ſo weighty, and recent, have been at different times the object of complaints made in the King's name, and ſtated in memorials, which were delivered either to the Britiſh miniſters at London, or tranſmitted to them thro' the channel of the Engliſh ambaſſador at Madrid; but although the anſwers which were received have been friendly, his Majeſty has hitherto obtained no other ſatisfaction than to ſee the inſults repeated, which lately have amounted to the number of one hundred.

The King proceeding with the ſincerity and candour which characterize him, has formally declared to the Court of London, from the commencement of its diſputes with France, that the conduct of England ſhould be the rule of that which Spain would hold.

His Majeſty likewiſe declared to that Court, that at the time their differences with that of Paris might be accommodated it would be abſolutely neceſſary to regulate thoſe which had ariſen, or might ſtill ariſe with Spain, and in the plan of mediation which was ſent to the underwritten ambaſſador the 28th of laſt September, and which was by him delivered to the Britiſh miniſtry in the beginning of October; a plan of which Lord [illegible]ham was apprized, and of which he received a [illegible]. His Majeſty declared in poſitive terms to the belligerent powers, that in conſideration of the inſults which his ſubjects and dominions had ſuffered, and likewiſe of the attempts levelled againſt his rights, he ſhould be under the neceſſity of taking his part, in caſe the negociation, inſtead of being continued with ſincerity, ſhould be broken off, or ſhould produce no effect.

The cauſes of complaint given by the Court of London not having ceaſed, and that Court ſhewing no diſpoſition to give reparation for them, the King has reſolved, and orders his ambaſſador to declare, that the honour of his Crown, the protection which he owes to his ſubjects, and his own perſonal dignity do not permit him to ſuffer their inſults to continue, and to neglect any longer the reparation of thoſe already received; and in this view, notwithſtanding the pacific diſpoſitions of his Majeſty, and even the particular inclination he has always had and expreſſed for cultivating the friendſhip of his Britannic Majeſty, he finds himſelf under the diſagreeable neceſſity of making uſe of all the means which the Almighty has intruſted him with, to obtain that juſtice which he has ſolicited by ſo many ways without being able to acquire: In confiding on the juſtice of his cauſe, his Majeſty hopes that the conſequences of this reſolution will not be imputed to him before God or man, and that other nations will form a ſuitable idea of this reſolution, by comparing it to the conduct of which they themſelves have experienced on the part of the Britiſh miniſtry.

Signed,

LE MARQUIS D'ALMODOVAR.

KING's MESSAGE.

(COPY.)

GEORGE R.

THE Ambaſſador of the King of Spain having delivered a paper to Lord Viſcount Weymouth, and ſignified, that he has received orders from his court immediately to withdraw from this country; his majeſty has judged it neceſſary to direct a copy of that paper to be laid before the Houſe of Commons as a matter of the higheſt importance to the crown and people; and his majeſty acquaints them at the ſame time, that he has found himſelf obliged in conſequence of the hoſtile declaration, to recal his Ambaſſador from Madrid.

His majeſty declares in the moſt ſolemn manner, that his deſire to preſerve and cultivate peace and friendly intercourſe with the court of Spain, has been uniform and ſincere; and that his conduct towards that power has been guided by no other motives or principles than thoſe of good faith, honour and juſtice; and his majeſty ſees with the greater ſurprize the pretences on which this declaration is grounded, as ſome of the grievances enumerated in that paper have never come to the knowledge of his majeſty, either by repreſentation on the part of the Catholic King, or by intelligence from any other quarter; and in all thoſe caſes where applications have been received, the matter of complaint has been treated with the utmoſt attention, and put into a courſe of enquiry and redreſs.

His majeſty has the firmeſt confidence, that his faithful commons will, with that zeal and public ſpirit, which he has ſo often experienced, ſupport his majeſty in his reſolution, to exert all the power, and all the reſources of the nation, to reſiſt and repel any hoſtile attempts of the court of Spain; and that, by the bleſſing of God, on the rectitude of his intentions, and the equity of his cauſe, his majeſty will be able to withſtand and defeat the unjuſt and dangerous enterprizes of his enemies, againſt the honour of his crown and the commerce, the rights, and the common intereſts of all his ſubjects.

Theſe important papers being read, Lord North moved for an humble Addreſs to his Majeſty, and was ſeconded by Lord John Cavendiſh, aſſuring his Majeſty, that his faithful Commons were ready to aſſiſt him with their lives and fortunes againſt his enemies.

DUBLIN, April 27.

Yeſterday, purſuant to notice iſſued by the High Sheriffs of the city, a numerous body of the aggregate inhabitants aſſembled at the Tholſel, to take into conſideration the moſt effectual method of promoting the trade and manufactures of this country.

Reſolved, that from and after the firſt of May next, they would not directly or indirectly, uſe any of the goods or wares of Great Britain, which can be manufactured in this kingdom. The reſolutions are ſimilar to thoſe entered into by the corporation of the Quarter Aſſembly.

Extract of a Letter from Dublin, May 22.

"An expreſs from Lord George Germaine arrived here laſt Wedneſday night; in conſequence of which (as it is ſaid to contain poſitive advice of an intended deſcent by the French on the coaſt of Antrim) the route of the army through the whole kingdom is changed, ſeveral regiments of foot and cavalry being ordered to the north; and this day two detachments of the royal regiment of artillery, one of 40 men and 6 pieces of cannon, the other with 20 men with 3 cannon, are marched from our caſtle, the firſt for Carrickfergus, and the laſt for Galway, the remainder of the regiment of artillery, all but two companies, are under marching orders.

All the [illegible] of chevalier lately [illegible] rica, laugh at the acquiſition of [illegible] poſed diſſenſions amongſt the [illegible] probable grounds of accommodat[illegible] of the beſt reaſons, they know [illegible] unite the two countries."

…ies (though they encourage the … by their reasons, &c) are thoroughly … with America can only be concluded on the part of England.

…erican Royal Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, July 22.

… Thursday arrived his Majesty's frigate Greyhound, which … from England the 4th ult. ten days after the departure of the fleet destined for America, consisting of eleven … of the line and 300 transports, with 7000 troops on board; 5000 of them are said to be bound for this port, and the remainder for Carolina. [Other Accounts, more worthy of Credit, make the Number of Ships of the line only 3, the Transports to 80, and the Troops not exceeding 4500, including some that were destined for the West Indies; but there was a vast number of Sail in the fleet.]

The right honourable General Cornwallis, the hon. Col. Stuart and Col. Paterson came out in the Greyhound. The arrival of those respectable officers, so highly esteemed by the army and loyalists, diffuses universal joy. [For a very short period.]

The advices from England by the Greyhound are, that instructions have been transmitted to Lord Grantham, the British Ambassador at the Court of Madrid, to demand an immediate categorical declaration, whether Spain intends, directly or indirectly, to take part with the American rebels, or interfere in the dispute betwixt Great Britain and France and to intimate, that any delay or evasion would be considered as a declaration of war: at the same time to notify, that twenty-two sail of Russian ships of the line would soon appear in the Mediterranean, to act in conjunction with the British navy, and that the island of Minorca was immediately to be garrisoned by a formidable body of Russian troops. [See Spain's categorical Answer in the beginning of this Paper. —— As for the Russians, they are wisely taking Care of their own Trade. This is one of Mr. Rivington's ingenious Devices.]

In a private letter received by the Greyhound, it is mentioned as a well-known fact, that the fleet under Admiral Arbuthnot, had lain two months wind bound previous to its sailing. To the winds therefore alone, and not to any delay or weakness of Britain, it is owing that the American Congress exists at this hour. [If GOD is for America, who will be against it?]

Sir Andrew Snape Hammond remains to convoy the second division of reinforcements destined for this port. The French have given up all idea of supporting a capital fleet at sea: They have divided into little squadrons, none of which hope for victory, though each aspires to the honour of being the last destroyed by the English loups de mer. [Another Specimen of Mr. Rivington's ingenuity!]

The fort at Stoney Point is now garisoned by the 23d, 42d, and 64th regiments, and part of Colonels Robinson's and Fanning's. Brigadier General Stirling is appointed to the command of that garison.

BOSTON, July 19.

Last week arrived at safe port, a sloop, with about 200 puncheons of rum, prize to the privateer brig Active, Capt. Hallet.

Yesterday arrived at said port a brig laden with salt, prize to the Gen. Starks privateer.

JULY 26. Since our last arrived in port a prize ship with 800 barrels of beef, 600 of pork, and 500 barrels of flour; prize to the General Pickering.

Yesterday two prizes were sent in here, taken by the brave Capt. Manly, in the privateer armed ship the Jason, lately captured from the enemy. The prizes are brigs, the one a privateer from Liverpool, of 18 guns, well manned and fitted the other from Scotland of 16 guns and 6 howitzers. They came out from New-York in concert to cruize, and vain of their own strength, were expressing their wishes that they might meet, and have the honour of taking a Yankey frigate. Capt. Manly behaved through the whole affair with great coolness, judgment and intrepidity. He never returned the fire of the enemy till he came close up with them; then running between them he first gave the Liverpool privateer a broadside, that immediately flung her into the utmost confusion, and killed and wounded 30 of her men; the other broadside was instantly given to the Scotch privateer, when both struck without any further resistance.

Monday last arrived here a brig, bound from Tortola to New-York, with 256 puncheons of rum and some fruit. She was navigated with 8 hands, three of whom were Americans. These three agreed to confine the Captain, and bring the vessel to this port. They executed thier purpose with caution and intredipity: have brought the vessel and cargo safe to port, and made their fortunes.

Capt. David Brooks, in the privateer schooner Eagle, off Huntingdon, took the schooner Maria, and sent her into Connecticut river. She is laden with rum, pork, flour, peas.

The enemy have destroyed at Fairfield and Norwalk, 234 houses, 235 barns, 30 stores, 40 shops, 4 mills and 5 vessels.

On Friday last past by Egg-Harbour toward Sandy-Hook from the southward, a fleet of 47 sail, which, from a number of sloops and schooners in it, is supposed to be from Georgia for New-York.

On the 3d inst. Sir George Collier sailed from New-York with a small squadron, it is said, consisting of the Raisonable of 64, the Ramillies 64, the Delaware, Virginia, and Greyhound frigates, and the Daphne and Galatea of 20 guns each, with about 700 land forces on board, as marines. Their destination not known, but supposed for the relief of Penobscot.

Extract of a letter from Jamaica Plains, near Boston, dated August 4, 1779.

"We received advice yesterday of the signal success of our little fleet and army at Penobscot, who as we are informed took every man of the enemy there, a frigate, a sloop of war &c. Mowat, who burned Falmouth commanded the enemy's fleet, and finding he could not save it, sunk part of it, but it is thought they may be raised. He is a prisoner.—A vessel from Marblehead, which arrived to-day, brings the same account; so that it is universally credited, notwithstanding the Council have not officially received it."

AUGUST 2. Saturday last arrived here the prize ship Tartar, mounting 26 carriage guns, besides cohorns and swivels, and had 230 hands: taken by the Mifflin of 20 guns, capt. Babcock, of this port, and only 100 hands: She was fitted out of England for the purpose of taking an American privateer supposed to cruize for a Tartar. The Tartar had 20 hands killed, besides some wounded. The Mifflin had also taken a ship, of which we have since been informed. When the Tartar left the Mifflin, she was chased by a 40 gun ship and two frigates, but as she sailed very fast, 'tis thought she got clear.

The Tartar on her voyage hither, took a brig laden with about 2500 quintals of fish, which she parted with five days before her arrival here, and may be hourly expected.

Yesterday arrived safe in port, a prize letter of mark sloop, laden with rum. She was bound from Jamaica for New-York, and taken off the Hook by the Gates and Beaver privateers, which also took a sloop bound from Georgia for New-York, that arrived at a safe port last Saturday.

AUGUST 5. Thursday last arrived here, a French frigate of 32 guns from France, in which came passengers his Excellency the Chev. DE LA LUZERNE, Plenipotentiary from his most Christian Majesty to the United States, with his secretary, &c. as also the Hon. John Adams, Esq; late a commissioner from these States to the court of France.

Lord Cornwallis, who is arrived at New York, we hear supercedes Sir Henry Clinton.—'Twas Cornwallis, we are told, who first proposed and strongly recommended, depredation, burning, and the utmost horrors of war, as the plan of proceeding against America.

PHILADELPHIA,

AUGUST 28. By a sailor from Egg Harbour we are informed, that on Wednesday last the schooner Mars, capt. Taylor of this port, off Sandy Hook, fell in with a snow mounting 14 guns, which he boarded and took; she proved to be a packet from Falmouth for New York. Capt. Taylor took the mail and the prisoners, 45 in number, on board his schooner and stood for Egg harbour; but on saturday morning last he fell in with a fleet of 23 sail, under convoy of a large ship and frigate, when the frigate gave chace to the packet and retook her. Capt. Taylor is got safe into Egg Harbour.

Charlestown, September 8.

LAST Saturday a very valuable little Fleet (belonging to this Port) arrived here from St. Eustatius: And one of them, the Letter of Mark Brig Hercules, commanded by Capt. Josiah Young, brought in the British armed Schooner Eagle, of 2 Carriage and 12 Swivel guns, and 27 Men (Tender to the Experiment Man of War of 50 guns, Commodore Sir James Wallace) which Captain Young took the day before, and had been out but 4 days from Tybee, for intelligence and to look into this harbour.

The same Night, arrived here, M. le Vicomte de Foutanges, from His Excellency the Count d'Estaing, who is not far distant with a very powerful Fleet and Land Force of our great and good Ally, His most Christian Majesty, come purposely to the Relief of these invaded States.

We expect important intelligence every hour.

ON Thursday September 17, will be sold at public Vendue, before our Store, near the Exchange,

WHereas Complaint has been made to me, that the northward Rider from this Office has been detained for considerable length of Time, at some of the Ferries,—and that the southward Rider has not only been detained, but has had his Horse concealed till he had paid large Sums of Money for crossing over (directly contrary to the Laws of this State) under Pretence, that their Ferries are not established,

I give this public Notice,

That unless Reparation is immediately made to the southward Rider, I shall be compelled to enter Actions against the Parties concerned.—The keepers of the northward Ferries, after this Intimation, 'tis expected will be more diligent.
